

PROFESSIONAL LEARNING IN AN INTERNATIONAL STORM.

Thinking about the professional learning of educators at a time when both physical and economic warfare threaten in unpredictable ways is not easy. There is no guaranteed advice to educators that I can offer. Instead, let me remind everyone that the first seven letters of the word 'professional' are important. Learning is mutual, teachers also learn from students. But it is essential to be able at least to attempt to articulate our values. And the values of educators are social values.

As we face a possibly harmful future, I believe that more than ever do we need to say and show what we profess.

Cliff Jones, 28th. February 2025.

www.criticalprofessionallearning.co.uk